Dear Dr. Andi Thahir,
This is regarding your manuscript titled "Male and Female Differences of Student Anxiety Levels on COVID-19 Based on Hamilton Anxiety Rating Scale (HARS)". In the light of initial editorial processing it is recommended to re-write manuscript to format it in accordance to Pjpr and APA VI style. The review indicates that article manuscript needs following changes to be incorporated in the article:
General Comment:
The present study manuscript is quite interesting and potentially bear the chance of publication in Pjpr. However, there are certain context related concerns for which authors are suggested to rewrite the manuscript in the light of given recommendation. This will surely help the authors in improving the quality, precision and readability of the article.
Title:
It would be more appropriate to rephrase it as "Gender differences on Covid-19 Related Anxiety Among Students."
Abstract
1. It should be in past tense.

Title:
It would be more appropriate to rephrase it as "Gender differences on Covid-19 Related Anxiety Among Students."
Abstract
1. It should be in past tense
2. Please mention objectives of the study
3. Add age range with M and SD sample.
4. Elaborate major findings of the study
5. Please remove all digits and statistics from this section.
6. Please add citation of the Scale used to collect data.
Introduction
1. Please format this section to develop logical understanding of pandemic and related anxiety.
2. Please quote all citation in strict adherence to APAVI.
3. As primary premises of the manuscript is on gender differences, therefore, please add relevant literature that support the proposed hypothesis.
4. In this section, also add proper rationale identifying gaps, need & inconsistencies in existing literature that provide basis in designing present study.
5. In lieu to the previous point, also add context specifying situation of COVID-19 and its psychological problems in your country.
Method
Description of sample, measures used and procedure must be elaborative and encompass all essential details. For this, we strongly recommend authors to please visit Pjpr website and look for recently published articles for guidance.
Results
This section need major revision and authors are recommended to prepare Tables in accordance to APA VI. In addition, please add few rigorous analysis across demographics which can contribute in depth inferences about this study.
