ABSTRACT

The objectives of this research were to find out error correction techniques, error correction symbols which were used by English lecturers in guiding research report writing , error types which were corrected by English lecturers in guiding research report writing

Method employed of this research was quantitative survey research. It is called quantitative because the main instrument of this investigation is questionnaire. According to Dornyei (2007) the results of a questionnaire survey are typically quantitative. The main purpose of survey is to get information that relates to facts, attitude, opinion, feelings of research respondent. Population of this research was all lecturers who guided students in writing their Research Report at IAIN Raden Intan English Study Program. The number was 20 people. However, in the process of data collection or questionnaire distribution, there were only 16 lecturers who filled in the questionnaire.

Research findings reveal the following this: In correcting students' research reports or skripsi writing at IAIN Raden Intan English department, English lecturers used some techniques such as direct, indirect, correcting all the errors, correcting errors selectively, consulting grammar book & dictionary, using marking scale, asking me, giving remedial teaching techniques. From the techniques above, consulting grammar book & dictionary, direct, correcting all the errors, indirect, and asking me were the most popular techniques used. Some lecturers also mentioned other their own techniques such as peer correction, SQ4R, and computer checker. The English Lecturers in doing correction also employed some symbols such as Underline, circle, cross, and metalinguistic. The most often used symbol was underline and the least used symbol was metalinguistic. Majority of lecturers also wrote those symbols above the errors as preferred location. Lecturers also mentioned some other symbols such as Checklist, question mark, double exclamation mark, and arrow. There were some kinds of errors that often checked by IAIN Raden Intan English lecturer in guiding students' skripsi writing such as grammar, spelling, capitalization, vocabulary choice, and punctuation marks. Grammar error was the most wanted type to be corrected by the lecturers. They also told some other kinds of errors such as writing formats (space, indentation), technique of making quotation both direct and indirect, writing references, transition signal, text citations, and paraphrases.

Key words: Problems, language laboratory, case study.
