Dear Dr. Subandi (subandi@radeniintan.ac.id),

Thank you for submitting an article to Utopia and Latin American Praxis.

The next thing for you to expect is that we will be carrying out a pre-editing of the article. When the article has been edited, we will send you a copy. Changed items will be indicated by highlighting. You will have a chance to further correct and approve any changes before the start of the peer review process.

Best regards,

Dear Dr. Subandi (subandi@radeniintan.ac.id),

Thank you for your submission to Utopia and Latin American Praxis. The topic is of considerable potential interest to our readers.

In preparation for the peer review process, we have carried out a preliminary checking of format and style. Please carefully check the attached pre-edited version of your document. Green or blue highlighting indicates changed items. If you agree with the changes, then only your approval is needed (but please leave the highlighting). Otherwise, please make additional changes and mark those changes with another color of highlighting or with colored text.

Please note: The references and citations have been formatted to Utopia and Latin American Praxis guidelines; kindly ensure that these changes are maintained. Please do not use EndNote, the citation function in Word software, or any other citation manager during your revisions. Yellow highlighting, if any, indicates items that require author attention. Most often we use yellow highlighting when we are not sure about the intended meaning. In other cases, information needs to be supplied by the authors, or a sentence needs to be inserted to clarify a point being made. Yellow highlighting also is used if something is missing from a literature reference, e.g., the title, issue number, or final page number. Please respond to this e-mail and keep [ID#229018] in the subject line for all e-mail correspondence related to this submitted article. When we get your response and corrections, the peer review process can be started.
